Four humorous stories about a group of teenagers

A cast of teenage students experience a roller coaster of hilarious situations in these fun and meaningful sitcoms in “bande dessinée” format. Students will learn to replace violent responses with conflict resolution strategies, deceit with honesty, self pity with confidence and selfishness with generosity. The zany characters in “Nous, les Jeunes” test friendships, walk a tightrope when trying to resolve conflicts, feel the heat when they don't treat each other with honesty, and learn relationship skills and problem-solving skills. The high interest/low vocabulary, attractive, full colour comic book readers are in a format students associate with reading for fun! Students and teachers love these readers!

Step by step graded activities as well as audio tape dramatisations of the stories are available.

Why you should use these readers:

- The stories answer the latest curriculum demands for relevance to the students. The books address issues students deeply care about. Relationships, friendship, peer acceptance, and more are treated with honesty and humour, without being “preachy”.
- The books are age and level appropriate. The context is familiar and meaningful.
- This series is visually appealing, in a format associated with reading for fun.
- It also works well with split grades.
- All the work is done for you: step by step reproducible activities for beginning to advanced students are available.
- It is just what you've been asking for: we interviewed and consulted with dozens of teachers, French consultants and students before putting this series together.
- Students and teachers love these stories!

CHIEN ET CHAT

This hilarious story shows how small, harmless lies can grow into big problems that can get anyone into more trouble than they can handle. Jean lies to his cousin about dating Sylvie, and Chantal buys a dog without telling her parents. Things come to a head for Jean when both his cousin and Sylvie actually meet and Sylvie takes a liking to the cousin. The plot also thickens for Chantal when her little plan to get a dog backfires.

Things do have a way of resolving themselves, once our friends learn some important lessons.

ISABELLE

The two most popular guys in school, who both want to date Isabelle, talk behind Jean's back. He finds out and decides to use his smarts to outdo them both for Isabelle's affection. Will brains beat out good looks, physical strength and popularity? Find out in this hilarious short comedy.

LES DURS

In order to protect some squirrels, Jean is forced to humiliate the school bully in front of the whole gang. After class, however, Jean's fears become reality: He is confronted by Martin, the bully, and they must meet Friday after school. Read on to find out how a clever plan from Jean's friends teaches both boys a lesson on violence, without hurting a fly!

VÉLO

Jean works for the world's biggest miser, who thinks everyone is out to cheat him. He tries to swindle everyone he comes in contact with. This leads to one funny scene after another. In this comical story we discover teamwork and generosity are better than selfishness, while the old adage “what goes around comes around” rings loud and clear!
